you want respect not abuse

a Centrecare service for women experiencing and managing the consequences of abuse

when...

...you are not responsible for your partner's abusive behaviour

Experiencing the effects of domestic violence and/or abuse may leave you feeling depressed, unhappy, guilty, alone or even wondering if you are going crazy. You may believe that you are part of the problem or think 'that's just how life is' even though you don't like what is happening to you and know you don't deserve to be abused.

If you would like to talk to a qualified counsellor about your experience in a safe, non-judgemental space, Centrecare can provide this.

Does your husband or partner:

- shout and swear at you;
- put you down, call you crazy, dumb, lazy;
- prevent you from seeing your family and friends;
- check up on you;
- slam doors, push and shove you around;
- slap you;
- blame you for their angry outbursts;
- say you cannot do anything right;
- control the money;
- scare you at times;
- threaten to hurt you and/or the children if you leave them;
- treat you like a servant; and/or
- demand sex whether you want it or not?

If you answer "yes" to any of the above questions, then this service may be of help to you.

Centrecare provides counselling, support and group programs for women who are experiencing the effects of abuse. Services are also available for partners and children. Abuse in a relationship, also called family and domestic violence, refers to any action, verbal and/or non-verbal, that instills fear in the other person and can be displayed physically, emotionally, verbally, sexually, financially, spiritually and/or culturally.

Counselling

If you decide to make an appointment, you will speak with a counsellor who will give you the opportunity to talk about the abuse and identify the impact on you and your family. This is in a safe environment where you can express your feelings, such as sadness, anger, shame and depression.

Group Programs

You may wish to continue with one-on-one counselling or join one of Centrecare's group programs. These programs have allocated weekly topics that aim to help you:

- understand what constitutes abuse, the forms it takes and the cycle of abuse;
- understand the effects of abuse on you and your children;
- plan how to keep yourself and your children safe;
- realise that you are not responsible for your partner's behaviour; and
- learn about resources available to you in the community.

Women feedback how reassuring it is to know they are not alone and/or responsible for the abuse they have experienced. Women have shared that over time they regain their self-respect, self-confidence and are able to start to prioritise their needs in caring for themselves.

How long is a counselling session?

Generally, counselling sessions last 50 minutes.

This service is funded by the Department of Communities.
